[Continuation from the laſt Gazette.]

THEIR Majeſties ſet out from Wincheſter on Wedneſday the 30th of September, a little before Eleven o'Clock, and arrived at the Biſhop's Palace at Saliſbury at a Quarter before Three, and were received by a Captain's Guard from the King's Regiment of Dragoon Guards from the Camp. Their Majeſties were addreſſed by the Biſhop and Clergy, and by the Dean and Chapter. The Mayor and Commonalty of the City of New Sarum likewiſe waited on Their Majeſties there, with the Earl of Radnor the Recorder, who addreſſed Their Majeſties in a Speech of Congratulation on their ſafe Arrival. Their Majeſties then, with their Suites, and attended by the Biſhop and Clergy, the Dean and Chapter, the Mayor, Recorder, &c. went to view the Cathedral; and entering at the Weſt Door the Anthem of God ſave the King, and another Anthem ſuitable to the Occaſion of Their Majeſties Royal Viſit, were performed by the Choir. After paſſing ſome Time in the Cathedral, and admiring it's Architecture and Antiquities, Their Majeſties returned to the Weſt Door, where a very great Concourſe of People were aſſembled. Their Majeſties paſſed on Foot through the Guard, amidſt the joyful Acclamations of the numerous Spectators, to the Deanry Houſe; where, after making a ſhort Stay, Their Majeſties proceeded in Their Carriages to Wilton Houſe, the Seat of the Earl of Pembroke, where Their Majeſties arrived about a Quarter after Four o'Clock. The Guard of the King's Regiment of Light Dragoons attended Their Majeſties from Saliſbury, and a Guard of the Bedfordſhire Militia had been before placed at Wilton Houſe to do Duty as the King's Guard. On Their Majeſties Arrival They were waited upon and addreſſed by the Mayor, Recorder, and Burgeſſes of the Borough of Wilton. Great Numbers of People followed Their Majeſties Carriages from Saliſbury, many joined them on the Road, and from Wilton; and a very great Concourſe aſſembled at the Gates of Wilton Houſe, where they continued until Night.

On Thurſday Morning, a little before Nine, Their Majeſties left Lord Pembroke's Houſe; the King on Horſeback, and the Queen in Her Majeſty's Chaiſe, attended by Their Majeſties Suites, and proceeded through the Camp towards the Ground where the Regiments of Cavalry were previouſly arrived, for the Purpoſe of His Majeſty's Review. The Weather this Morning was unfavourable, there being ſeveral very heavy Showers of Rain; notwithſtanding which the Number of Spectators collected together is ſcarcely to be deſcribed. Their Majeſties entered the Line of the Cavalry on the Right, and, paſſing along the Front, received the Salutes of the General Officers, and the ſeveral Officers of the Regiments, and returned by the Rear; ſoon after which, the Front of the Line being cleared, and Their Majeſties having placed themſelves on an Eminence, the Troops began their Exerciſe, firſt marching by in Squadrons, and then went through ſeveral Manœuvres both on Horſeback and on Foot, with the Firings and Exerciſe of the Light Dragoons, which exhibited at the ſame Time a very uſeful and a very pleaſing Scene. The Regiments diſmounted, and marched by the King and Queen in grand Diviſions. The Review ending at about Two o'Clock, His Majeſty alighted from His Horſe, and, proceeding a few Paces forward, attended by His Suite, the ſeveral Officers of the Regiments were introduced to His Majeſty, regimentally, as at Wincheſter, and had all the Honour of kiſſing His Majeſty's Hand. The King was graciouſly pleaſed to approve the Appearance, Diſcipline, and good Order of the Regiments; and, mounting His Horſe again, His Majeſty was pleaſed to take a conſiderable Circuit, to indulge ſuch of the Spectators, as from their great Number could not get ſufficiently forward, with a nearer and leſs interrupted Sight of His Majeſty: For the like Purpoſe, and to gratify the Multitude, whoſe Loyalty had brought them together on this Occaſion, His Majeſty was pleaſed to return to Wilton Houſe on Horſeback; where His Majeſty arriving about Four o'Clock, He was pleaſed, together with the Queen, attended by Their Suites, and the Earl and Counteſs of Pembroke, to viſit ſeveral Parts of Lord Pembroke's Park, and alighted at his Lordſhip's Houſe at Half paſt Four o'Clock.

At Half paſt Nine o'Clock on Friday Morning Their Majeſties, attended by Their Suites, and the Earl and Counteſs of Pembroke, left Wilton Houſe on Their Way to Stonehenge, which Their Majeſties examined very attentively. Their Majeſties arrived at the Duke of Queenſberry's Houſe at Ambreſbury at Eleven o'Clock, where they ſtaid a little more than an Hour, and then proceeded on Their Return to Windſor, where Their Majeſties arrived at Six o'Clock in the Evening.

Before Their Majeſties left Wilton Houſe, the King was graciouſly pleaſed to order a Sum of Money to be put into the Hands of the Mayor of Saliſbury, to be by him diſtributed to the poor and diſtreſſed Families of that City and Suburbs; to make a Preſent to the Widows of the Clergy there, to the Ringers of the ſeveral Pariſhes, and to the Vergers of the Cathedral; and to direct, as at Wincheſter, a Return and State to be made of the ſeveral Perſons confined for Debt there, in order that ſuch of them as ſhall appear to be proper Objects may receive His Majeſty's Royal Bounty for their Enlargement.

The numerous Aſſemblies of the People in the Roads, Villages, and Towns, through which Their Majeſties paſſed during the whole Journey, with the Ringing of Bells, the Decorating of the Houſes with Boughs of Trees, Flowers, and Garlands, together with the continual Acclamations, and the Joy, which the People teſtified on Their Majeſties paſſing, very ſtrongly marked the Duty, Loyalty, and Affection, with which all Ranks of People were animated by the Preſence of Their Majeſties; and gave Their Majeſties the greateſt Satisfaction.
